

INTRODUCTION TO BASIC INSTRUCTIONS BEFORE LEAVING EARTH

My dad always said, "When all else fails, read the instructions." Normally I would only follow this advice as a last resort. Almost everything we purchase comes with an owner's manual. Owner's manuals not only contain instructions, but also warnings. I recently purchased a new computer for my office. Thank goodness the manufacturer did not expect me to instinctively know how to operate the machine. I was pleased to see that it came with an owner's manual (including software instructions).

The manual told me which combination of keys to press in order to get specific desired results. For instance, if I wanted to generate a legal brief with certain margins and fonts, I simply went to the appropriate sections of the manual, did exactly what the instructions told me to do, and "magically" got the results I wanted. The instructions did not always seem logical (i.e. who would ever think that to reboot your computer you would press the "Ctrl," "Alt," and "Delete" keys simultaneously--where is the logic there?), but when I trusted the higher knowledge of the manufacturer and followed the instructions, the results were always what I wanted. In other words, I knew what I wanted but just did not know how to accomplish it on my own. Although I always had the option of ignoring the owner's manual and using the trial-and-error method, I did not want to waste my time and achieve a lot of bad results. Therefore, I usually just followed the instructions.

Isn't life much the same. We know what we want out of life (happiness, joy, peace, fulfillment), but we do not know how to get it. So we start guessing--we just depend on our own senses and start doing whatever feels good or seems right at the moment. This is called the trial-and-error method. We soon find that we are making a lot of mistakes and getting some unintended bad results. For instance, in an effort to have fun we might decide to press the two keys entitled "alcohol" and "sex" simultaneously only to find short-lived fun and long-term pain and problems. At one time or another, we have all made bad decisions--similar to the owner of a computer who decides to ignore the owner's manual and begin guessing. But, is there an owner's manual for life?

We can all agree that it would have been absurd for Apple or Dell to have created an advanced computer system and failed to have included an owner's manual. But wouldn't it have been just as absurd for God to have created us, far more complex than any computer, and failed to have included an owner's manual instructing us how to operate our lives to achieve the best results?

Life is not a dress rehearsal. Every day is show time. Determining how to optimally live is therefore the most important discovery a human can make. The Bible is God's owner's manual for humans. It contains all of the basic instructions one needs before leaving earth. There are two alternative methods by which one may live their life: (1) the trial-and-error method, or (2) the owner's manual method. You get to choose.

After becoming a Christian in high school, I began listing all of the good sermons I heard by jotting down the topics and scriptures in the front of my Bible. When I began working with teens, I found that many teens were making bad decisions due to an ignorance of God's specific instructions (and warnings). In talking with teens and answering their questions, I often found myself referring to the list in the front of my Bible. I discovered that teens wanted to know what God had to say about issues but did not have an easy way to locate the information. In an attempt to assist with this problem, I typed the list from the front of my Bible (condensing it to the thirty four most frequently requested topics; and putting it on a single page--front and back--which can be folded and kept in the front of a Bible). The following is the list which is entitled "Basic Instructions Before Leaving Earth" (B.I.B.L.E.):
